

knowledge, the “we” content

ημερολόγιο
journal

We are already took the risk to search the properties of the city's eastern front which is close enough and already familiar to refer to it as the area of investigation. In addition, we have already prepare ourselves to live into this mountainous environment at a high altitude, spent our days in conjunction with the temperature, the sounds, the wind, the fall of the night and the coming of a bright morning. We are going to upload and offer all information needed to our temporal but eventually close comrades. We are and we will investigate this “we” content. As soon as the first greetings will be given on our arrival. The first sentences containing the explanation of the origin of our names and surnames. The first walk under the powerful sun and the shadows welcoming our presence. Everything needed to seek our common goal is around us. The tables beside the heavy vegetation, the chairs and the benches to sustain our long working disciplines and the desired conversations. The vast hall to embrace our continuous exploration and the creation of pictures, notes, sentences designs and dialogues. The extraordinary number of participants, these strangers who are already constitute the multitude of relations leading to the formation of our common identity. The morning came and lead our course into the valley. Noon came and the notebooks and cameras are full of possible and variable details of meaning. Along the rest of the day and the ongoing days of mutual collaboration a variety of answers and questions will be create, sustaining our presence.

The name of the Egyptian girl became the name of that far away detail on the mountain peak. The name of the Cyprian boy become the name of the path that lead us to the abandoned monastery near by. The name of the tree protecting our long afternoon discussions became the landmark of our proposal. The name of the valley became the word for our precious and priceless offer.

